SYMPHONY No. 4, IN C MINOR

("Tragic") (Schubert)

We are all too willing to regard Schubert as a one symphony composer, or two at most. But if you think the plaintive loveliness of the "Unfinished" has no parallel, you must hear this stronger, less plaintive, more vital music. It has been one of Mr. Barbirolli's most interesting and most revealing performances, for the orchestra and its distinguished young conductor handle the whole symphony with loving care and bring to it a profound sympathy and understanding. This is the only modern recording of the work.

2. Unterm Fenster (Schumann, Opus 34, No. 3)

Here is music from a field that has been little explored and records which we feel have no superior in the world in sheer loveliness, in humor, sentiment, tenderness, and in absolute perfection of ensemble.

Madame Lehmann and Mr. Melchior have never done anything on records more appealing, and a word must be said, too, for the skillful orchestrations of Bruno Reibold, which might indeed have been written by Schumann himself.

Czardas; Klänge der Heimat* (Johann Strauss, Opus 56) (*Arranged by Viktor Gomboz)

Here is music that comes straight from the heart of Vienna and embodies more than any music we know the unforgettable charm of that unforgettable city. The Vienna Choir Boys, Viennese all, give the last measure of their inimitable charm in their extraordinary vocal performances of this music of the Strausses.

SONATA IN E MINOR (Brahms, Opus 38)

Brahms' intimate music has for many of us even more compelling quality than the four great symphonies, and this superb work, exposed by two of the greatest artists in the world on their respective instruments, reveals Brahms' music as we hope and believe he himself would like to have it heard.

SONATA IN F MAJOR (Mozart, 1779)

MARCHE FUNEBRE (From Sonata for Piano, Filip Lazar, Op. 15)

José ITURBI
Piano solo

José Iturbi stands in the front rank of the great pianists and it is not too reckless to say that in the music of Mozart few, if any, can approach him. This short but delicious sonata reveals the inimitable and indescribable delicacy and color of Iturbi's playing, and the final movement alone is an astonishing tour de force both in execution and recording. The Marche Funebre is of course music of a very different type, strongly and interestingly contrasted with the classic purity and flickering brightness of the Mozart.

CONCERTO GROSSO FOR PIANO AND STRING ORCHESTRA (Ernest Bloch)

CANZONETTA FOR STRING ORCHESTRA
(Jean Sibelius, Opus 62-A)

Ernest Bloch has left his impress deep upon music in America. One of the most interesting and provocative of contemporary composers, his music while often debatable is always colorful, novel in harmonic treatment, emotionally intense and interesting from start to finish. One of his most interesting works for smaller ensembles is this Concerto Grosso, here played by a group of virtuosi and played convincingly and with brilliance.

BLUE DANUBE WALTZ

TALES FROM THE VIENNA WOODS—Waltz

(Johann Strauss, Opus 325, arranged by Leopold Stokowski)

We are often asked, what is the best selling Red Seal Record. Here is the answer. For many years performance by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra of these two Strauss waltzes has been the best selling Red Seal Record. Here is a brand new recording, far surpassing in brilliance, clarity and color the old record which it replaces. You must hear it.

For Songs in Summer Weather —a Portable RCA Victrola

THE golden months of summer are days for enjoying the out-of-doors—at your summer cottage, on a vacation trip, or perhaps in your garden or on the summer porch. And there will be times when you want music—a bit of Chopin while a breeze rustles through the trees, or in the softness of a moonlit evening, you may want to hear, once more, that new recording of the Blue Danube Waltz by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra. Again, it may be a weekend party and it's dancing that everyone wants. Here is the place in your life which these companionable, portable RCA Victrolas can fill. They are ready to bring you the music you want when you want it,—wherever you go.

At the right is shown the Model U-50, an extraordinary portable electric combination RCA Victrola. With it you may hear either the foreign or domestic radio stations you want with a three-band receiver, or your favorite records with the excellent fidelity provided by a feather-touch Crystal Pickup and electrical reproduction. A similar phonograph only, Model

O-50, with electric motor and reproducer is also available. Both of these new RCA Victrolas have provisions for playing 10" or 12" records with the lid closed.

RCA VICTROLA MODEL U-50

At the lower left is shown the latest spring-wound acoustical reproducing Portable RCA Victrola. It has a specially designed composition sound chamber and sound box to insure fine volume and full tone. It has a needle box with hinged cover, speed regulator, and space for carrying 10" records. Attractive case with airplane cloth cover. Companion model in dark blue fabricoid case at the lowest price in history. Other portable RCA Victrolas are available also through your RCA Victor dealer.
